

True Potential Aggressive Portfolio

Portfolio Objective

The objective of the True Potential Aggressive Portfolio is to provide investors with a way to achieve their investment goals. The Portfolio offers full exposure to different manager styles within the Aggressive risk profile. We review the Portfolio monthly and, if necessary, rebalance to the allocation of styles that we believe offers the best opportunity for growth within the Aggressive risk profile. The Portfolio aims to produce a higher risk-adjusted outcome at a lower average cost, compared to an equally-weighted model of Aggressive funds.

Risk Profile: Aggressive

The Aggressive Investor usually aims to maximise long-term expected returns rather than to minimise possible short-term losses. An Aggressive Investor values high returns relatively more and can tolerate both large and frequent fluctuations through time in portfolio value in exchange for a higher return over the long-term.

Investment Commentary

The True Potential Aggressive Portfolio produced a return of +4.35% over the month of January, net of Portfolio OCF.

Global equities rebounded in January after a weak end to a strong year in December, buoyed by good news on earnings and a pause in the sharp increase in bond yields. US equities performed well but lagged Europe over the month as some of the euphoria around Trump's election win faded. News that a Chinese company had developed an open-source large language model at a fraction of the cost of US competitors checked the performance of technology stocks, with Nvidia dropping almost 11% over the month. Global sovereign bond yields continued to rise in the first half of the month, with strong growth in the US and fiscal concerns in the UK putting the US Treasury and UK gilt market under pressure. However, these concerns subsided, and yields dropped over January as a whole, resulting in modest positive returns. Gold was a particular highlight with the asset class benefiting from heightened market volatility. In currency, Sterling depreciated by 1.0% against the US dollar and the euro in January as expectations for interest rate cuts in the UK started to build again, fuelled by indications that the UK labour market is deteriorating quite rapidly.

The True Potential Pictet Aggressive fund performed strongly. Within equities, the fund holds a core of thematic positions, eleven out of twelve of themes held outperformed global equities. The positioning within gold and commodities were also rewarded.

Over the month, no changes were made to manager allocations. However, individual managers are making changes to the True Potential funds within the Portfolio. Examples include trimming exposure to US equities and rotating into European equities and increasing fixed income exposure.
