

True Potential Cautious Income Portfolio

Portfolio Objective

The objective of the True Potential Cautious Income Portfolio is to provide investors with a way to achieve their investment goals. This may be total return or a regular income. The Portfolio offers exposure to a select group of investment partners and a range of risk profiles, whilst remaining within the Cautious risk profile. We review the Portfolio monthly and, if necessary, rebalance to the allocation of styles we believe offers the best potential for yield within the Cautious risk profile. The Portfolio aims to produce a higher yield compared to an equally-weighted model of True Potential Wealth Strategy income funds.

Risk Profile: Cautious

The Cautious Investor may be sensitive to short-term losses. A Cautious Investor's potential aversion to losses could compel them to shift into a more stable investment if significant short-term losses occur. Analysing the risk-return choices available, a Cautious Investor is usually willing to accept somewhat lower returns in order to assure greater safety of his or her investment.

In September 2024, the FCA updated its Packaged Retail Insurance and Investment Products (PRIIPS) guidance on how we disclose costs for closed-ended funds like investment trusts. This change is designed to give you a clearer picture of the actual costs that impact your investments. As a result, some of our fund OCFs (Ongoing Charges Figure) have significantly decreased, reflecting only the costs that directly affect the fund's assets.

Investment Commentary

The True Potential Cautious Income Portfolio produced a return of +2.43% over the month of January, net of Portfolio OCF.

Global equities rebounded in January after a weak end to a strong year in December, buoyed by good news on earnings and a pause in the sharp increase in bond yields. US equities performed well but lagged Europe over the month as some of the euphoria around Trump's election win faded. News that a Chinese company had developed an open-source large language model at a fraction of the cost of US competitors checked the performance of technology stocks, with Nvidia dropping almost 11% over the month. Global sovereign bond yields continued to rise in the first half of the month, with strong growth in the US and fiscal concerns in the UK putting the US Treasury and UK gilt market under pressure. However, these concerns subsided, and yields dropped over January as a whole, resulting in modest positive returns. Gold was a particular highlight with the asset class benefitting from heightened market volatility. In currency, Sterling depreciated by 1.0% against the US dollar and the euro in January as expectations for interest rate cuts in the UK started to build again, fuelled by indications that the UK labour market is deteriorating quite rapidly.

The True Potential Threadneedle fund performed strongly. The fund benefitted from a higher UK equity allocation.

Over the month, no changes were made to manager allocations. However, individual managers are making changes to the True Potential funds within the Portfolio. Examples include trimming exposure to US equities and rotating into European equities and increasing fixed income exposure.
